Addressing Coronavirus in the Workplace

The spread of COVID-19 has raised significant issues for employers. We know that many of you have questions about your obligations to your employees and customers concerning the COVID-19 outbreak. Because every place of employment presents different challenges, there is no one-size-fits-all response, especially as the situation rapidly evolves. Please contact us to discuss best practices, telecommuting options, leaves of absences, sample policies and/or questionnaires, how and what to communicate to your employees and customers, what measures you can take to protect your business, and, most importantly, how to safeguard the health and well-being of your workforce and your customers. We are ready to field your questions and address your concerns.
